

Fifth grade students of Haggerty Elementary School received a free karate lesson last week as part of the 'MEAP in a Week' event.

School 'celebrates' week-long testing

Staff Writer

Normally, children of Haggerty Elementary don't receive free karate lessons during the afternoon school hours, but normally they don't have the 'Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) in a week', either.

So, for a couple hours last week, third, fourth and fifth grade test-takers enjoyed a variety of activities presented by various community volunteers. Activities like, 'Bubble-Gum Day; a personal trainer; brain exercises; Jazzercise and 'Mean Janine', who put on an exercise boot camp.

Students took the MEAP test in the morning, attended lunch, went to the MEAP Week activity and then went back to testing. All were body and mind activities with the intent to raise MEAP scores, according to school Principal Aliesa Pitt.

"Haggerty has always been consistent and had good scores, but every year the state raises the stakes so we're trying to keep up with their high expectations," said Pitt. "By the time the third week of testing roles around we find students say it's hard for them to concentrate. To keep them on that high we did this and it seems to be working."

Haggerty, the only school in the Van Buren Public School District to host MEAP

in a Week, got the teachers together to coordinate the event. Lessons remained both educational and enjoyable and every volunteer presenter told students about a goal, officials said.

"All of the speakers talked about confidence in themselves and students doing their best to excel and do well," said Pitt, who wore a 'General Pitt' t-shirt as part of the weeklong event. "I think they enjoyed karate the most. One student even told me that last year MEAP wasn't any fun, but not this year, this year it's exciting."

Montise Peterson, owner of Mizudo Academy of Martial Arts in Detroit, said he teaches karate to make people strong and to help others.

"You never want to use karate to bully people," he told the Belleville students. "If you're a strong person, your job is to make others feel strong. I've learned as I got older and stronger:

"Respect is treating other people like you want to be treated," he added. "The three rules of focus are: respect by looking with your eyes, listening with your ears and to have good body focus. Use karate to make you strong and not to hurt others."

Villa said overall, the students 'loved-it' and at the end of the day, MEAP in a Week was a rewarding outlet.

"I'm sure now, the rest of the school district will follow," Pitt said with a chuckle.

First ever pageant planned

The first Miss Van Buren Township will be selected this weekend.

Contestants will be judged on their stage presence and charisma in the categories that include: Little Miss for children 4-7 years old, Junior Miss for children 8-12, Miss Teen for ages 13-16 and Miss Van Buren Township for ages 17-22. On stage interviews and appearance will distinguish the winners, according to Laura Welling-Abney, the 1998 Miss Michigan and co-organizer of the first-ever such pageant in the township.

"The focus is on a well-rounded personality," she said. "The hope is that each contestant will have fun, develop confidence and enjoy being on stage to find out about themselves."

Welling-Abney said another hope is to make the Miss Van Buren Township pageant an annual event.

"I thought it would be nice to have this where I live now: Van Buren Township," she said.

Contestants will have a private interview, on-stage questions and model their party wear and sports wear. The talent and photogenic portions will be optional. Each participant will receive a rhinestone pin and certificate of memorabilia. Winners of each category will receive a trophy, banner, flowers and a crown, according to Jennifer Wright, deputy director of parks and recreation for the township and co-organizer of the pageant.

"It's hard to put yourself in that experience," said Welling-Abney. "The big thing is to enjoy yourself and the more contestants can be themselves, they better it's going to be."

"Everyone will walk away with something," she added.

"It's open to everyone," said Welling-Abney.

"If contestants didn't get in this year they can look for the pageant next year, too," said Wright.

The pageant will take place at 4:30 p.m. on Saturday at North Middle School. For more information, contact the recreation department at (734) 699-8921 or visit www.vanburen-mi.org.

Reject this amendment

When voters in Belleville go to the polls on Nov. 6, they'll decide more than who will serve on the Belleville City Council.

Well, sort of.

They will also see a proposed amendment to the city charter that would require voter approval before the city police or fire departments could be eliminated or prior to the city contracting with any other municipal corporation to provide those services.

Voters should reject the proposal.

Now, before anyone accuses us of wanting to dismantle the public safety department in the city, let us assure you that is not the case. Both departments have a proud heritage and they are intimately tied with the identity of the community.

Voters should reject it because it's bad policy. The legal counsel to the government has already weighed in on it. While they said the language itself was OK to be placed on the ballot, the issue contradicts current state law. It violates the Home Rule City Act. City Attorney Tim Cronin has already said that if the charter amendment is approved by voters, he will immediately challenge it. That means additional costs to city taxpayers.

It's easy to see where this idea came from: lingering discontent over the move to joint dispatch with Van Buren Township—a change that is working fine, by the way, and at a reduced cost to city taxpayers. A move toward a contract to provide police services might be seen by some as the next logical step, but that is not necessarily the case. Even so, there would be better ways to stop that than by amending the charter.

The reason the amendment contradicts state law, we suspect, is because it could hamstring local elected officials in making decisions that could benefit taxpayers. There may be a time when it will be cheaper to be a part of a regional police or fire authority than to provide the service. If the same or better services—and those are the key words, here—could be provided at a reduced cost, wouldn't you want your government to look into it?

The city council is voted into place to represent the interests of the voters. They should have the final say if and when this ever becomes a serious matter for discussion.

The charter amendment will have no impact in that decision, either. Voters should reject it now.

Cooperation bears sweet fruit

Some examples of cooperation seen in the City of Wayne are worth an additional look.

The city recently entered into an agreement to split the cost of a brine maker—we know, it's exciting stuff—with the City of Romulus to help keep down winter road maintenance costs.

Friday night, there was another example of a different kind of cooperation—this one a little more fun—in the new Oktoberfest celebration that took place at the Wayne Community Center.

This was a combined fundraiser to benefit the Wayne Rotary, the Wayne Wheelfest and the Wayne Chamber of Commerce. The three groups have worked together well in the past, putting on fundraisers that have been more successful together than they were separately.

On Tuesday night, another product of cooperation took an additional step forward, when the city granted contracts that will help bring the Boundless Playground at Soroptomist Park to fruition next year. Everyone who has attended a fundraiser, played in a golf outing or contributed an empty returnable can or bottle during the past year can say they have a hand in that one. They should be justifiably proud, too,

Fault isn't form of government

Here we go again.

The recent announcement of the resignation of Joyce Parker, Inkster city manager, and the city economic development director will probably bring back a debate about the form of government in that city.

In the past, members of the city council have tossed around the possibility of changing from a city manager form of government to a strong mayor form of government. Current Mayor Hilliard Hampton has been a strong proponent of this, claiming it will help economic development efforts to have someone in charge who is dedicated to improving the city.

That issue was included in the charter revisions rejected by Inkster voters. It was the main reason why this newspaper didn't endorse the revisions, as well.

It's true, too. The city will best be served by someone who is dedicated to improving the city. It will also best be served by someone with the background to pull it off, and an elected mayor doesn't ensure that. It's important to remember that the city management form of government is successful in nearly every community where it's used, too.

Even so, the debate is always a good thing, because it can illuminate different ways to improve the city. It gets the discussion going about what characteristics the council—or whomever ends up leading the search—should look for in their next top city official.

The form of government, though, isn't to blame for and perceived lack of progress in the City of Inkster. The economy itself is more to blame than anything. There's more needed to help the situation than a cheerleader—no matter where the cheerleader lives.

Besides, there's always the possibility that this underlying friction could be one of the causes for Parker's departure.

I was sad to hear of Parker's announcement when she dropped by recently. She has had her issues to overcome while in office—what administrator hasn't—but I think she has done a good job since she came on board. She was certainly a much better choice than Bob Gordon, whom she replaced.

Inkster has taken some positive steps—the most visible of which is the new city hall—and more developments are in the works. I also like the new approach to blight, where the city is working to take down long abandoned homes.

It may be inevitable that the debate comes up again as the search process gets under way. The best thing to do is pick a course of action and stick to it.

Schools 'launch' new science classes

As many of you know, the 50th anniversary of the launching of the Russian satellite Sputnik was two weeks ago. For those who don't know, this landmark launching made many American scientists look at improving our space research so we could continue to compete globally.

I found it interesting that Plymouth-Canton Community Schools chose to commemorate this historic launching with an interactive assembly for ninth and 10th grade students. According to Janet Kohan, district math and science coordinator, teachers not only used this event to talk about the Sputnik launch, but to stress to students the importance of working hard in math and science as the new Michigan curriculum makes it harder for them to graduate.

The new law, "Michigan Merit Core Curriculum," requires high school students to complete one credit each of algebra I, geometry, and algebra II and an additional year of math. The new science requirements also include one credit each of biology, physics or chemistry and an additional year of science.

Before many of you start thinking that this is unfair to high school students who've only been required by Michigan to complete ½ credit of civics to graduate, I need to make one point clear. The Michigan economy is changing and most young people who graduate from high school are academically unprepared for these changes.

A recent statistic said that only 32 percent of U.S. students entering ninth grade graduate prepared for college. For Latinos, the number is 16 percent and for African-Americans it is 20 percent.

Speaking of African-Americans, I was appalled to see a Channel 7 news report that discovered that students at a Cooley High School, a Detroit Public School, did not have textbooks or homework in their book bags. Administrators and teachers at this school need to be reprimanded. It is patently irresponsible to not give students textbooks or homework by the middle of October. Not preparing these students is setting them up for failure.

Some say that that these new state requirements are unfair to students who want to pursue careers in carpentry, cosmetology and plumbing because these fields don't require much math or science. The last time I checked, most employers value well-rounded applicants over those who had limited experience or education. The type of economy that our state faces

Wayne and Romulus to share new road equipment

Scott Spielman
Editor

Officials in Romulus and Wayne are teaming up to make roads safer this year—and save money at the same time.

The two cities will split the cost of an automated brine maker and storage tank that will reduce winter road maintenance costs for both communities in the short and long term, according to Robert English, assistant Wayne city manager.

"This is the first of many things we want to work with Romulus with," said English.

"It'll be a great savings for us in the long term," he added.

The City of Wayne experimented with a new way to salt roads during the winter months last year. Rather than spread rock salt on the roads as they had in the past, they made up a type of brine—using a derivative of beet juice—to pour on the roads. It's more accurate and it stays longer, English said. Rock salt has a tendency to bounce off the road and get spread onto grass.

It'll be a great savings for us in the long term.

Robert English

"(This) goes exactly where you want it to, and it sticks," he said.

The brine is more effective at colder temperatures and it doesn't require as many applications. It can also be made up ahead of time and spread in advance of snow or ice storms, which can reduce department overtime.

Romulus and Wayne will share the new machine, which will be housed at the Wayne Department of Public Works yard. The machine, which costs about $54,800, can mix up 5,000 gallons of brine at any one time.

It will be stored in huge tanks.

Wayne City Council members approved their portion of the expenditure recently. The Romulus City Council hasn't acted on it yet, but officials there said they look forward to the cooperation across borders.

"It's enjoyable to work with the city just to our north," said Tom Wilson, director of Romulus Public Works. "It will be advantageous for both communities. We all look forward to making our tax dollars go a little further."

College district to request renewal of millage

Andrea King
Staff Writer

Area residents will see a millage renewal on the November ballot for the Wayne County Community College District.

School officials are asking for a 10-year, 1.5-mill renewal set to expire in 2010. The millage, if approved, will be in effect from 2011 until 2021.

"We're making sure we have stability," said Dr. George Swan, vice chancellor for curriculum and planning. "A significant portion of our support and appropriations are tuition and local property taxes. We want to be able to continue programs and plan for operations."

"This is an opportunity to provide for new programs, too," he added. "So, really it's not asking for a renewal early, but it does provide reassurance."

The millage was first approved in 2001, which helped transform the institution, officials said.

"There's a five-year plan we're developing now so it would allow us to know we have the funds for that. If it (millage renewal) fails, we also have the opportunity to ask again," said Martha Grier, assistant to the chancellor for special programs.

Swan said for many years, the Wayne County Community College District was the only community who didn't have a millage, but in 2001 voters approved an additional 1.5 mills.

"It's important for us to be able to grow to serve the needs of the community," he said. "We're now in the middle of the pack when it comes to funding. We're not number one or last, but this does level the playing field."

The college, which is more than 30 years old, has never received capital funding from the State of Michigan to maintain the buildings or equipment.

"We can maintain technology upgrades, keep our facilities up to par and, we're able to build-in capital projects, as well," said Swan.

Past projects include the performing arts center for the college and renovations at the northwest campus.

The millage would generate about $41.1 million with the goal to fund operations, capital projects, hire faculty and upgrade technology, officials said.

"We have so many new programs. The community needs public resources to be there and if you look at enrollment, there's a demand," said Swan. "We must be able to service and meet that demand.

"If this doesn't pass, it would be a drastic impact on programs, along with new ones," he added.

Meals volunteers needed

The is one missing ingredient in solving the problem of seniors going hungry in Westland.

Volunteers to take them meals.

"We've had people waiting (to have meals delivered) since about April," said Carol Scott, services manager for Wayne County Senior Citizens Services.

The organization is actively searching for individuals willing to help remedy the situation.

"We could always use help in any community—we never turn a volunteer away," she said. "Whatever time they can commit to us, we'll take it, whether it is one hour one day per week or five days per week. We like to get the meals out by 11 a.m."

The greatest need, at this point, is for a delivery driver in the Merriman and Ann Arbor Trail area of Westland, Scott said, since that is the area in which residents had to be waitlisted. She added that in that area there is a larger than average number of people who qualify for and are enrolled in the program. Volunteers serving that neighborhood would pick up the prepared and packaged meals at St. Bernadine Church, located at 31463 Ann Arbor Tr. in Westland, for distribution.

Scott said that the organization would pay mileage to help offset any fuel costs.

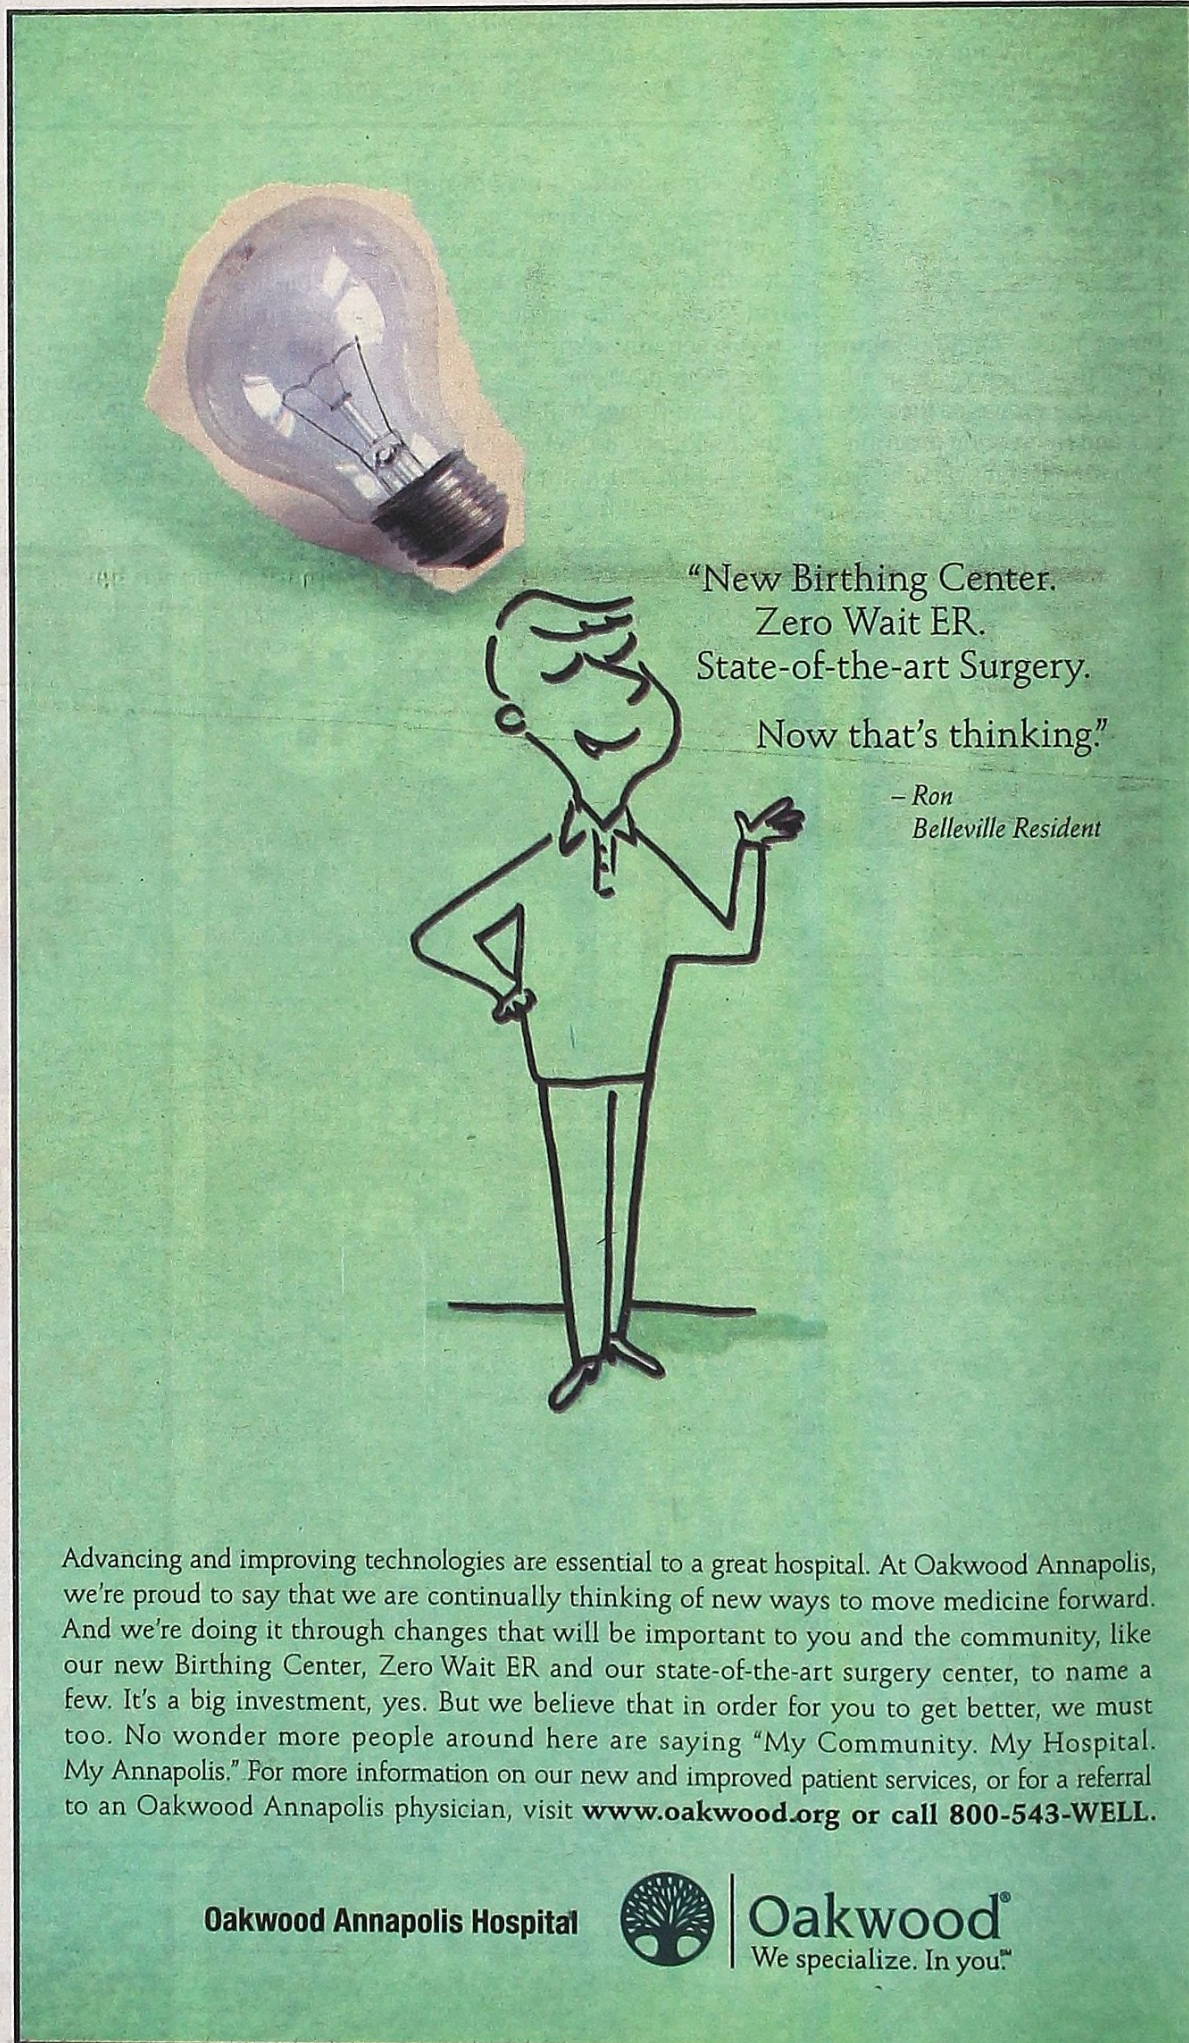

"We reimburse 36 cents per mile," she said.

In order to volunteer, an individual must have his or her own transportation, pass a background check, and be able to volunteer for about one hour in the morning.

Besides the food, Scott said that the volunteers also help offer homebound seniors—the majority of whom are at least 85 years old—daily contact and a friendly face.

Meals on Wheels, which is funded through the Senior Alliance, delivers to more than 2,500 people every weekday. In Westland alone, 426 people benefited from the program last year.

For more information or to volunteer for the program, call (734) 727-7357 between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Unstoppable Bulldogs no match for Vikings

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

Dearborn Heights Robichaud was supposed to be the Inkster Vikings' toughest opponent this season.

The gritty rivalry match-up only proved that the mighty Vikes are the real deal. There was no slowing the Inkster's offense and no getting past its defense for Robichaud as the Vikings raced to a 54-12 homecoming victory on Saturday.

Senior Aaron Shavers is emerging as one of the top quarterbacks in the area. He went 7-for-12 for 158 yards through the air with three touchdowns and he rushed for 76 yards on eight carries for two scores. He also completed two passes for two separate two-point conversions. So far this season, Shavers is 59 of 107 for 1,037 yards with 18 touchdowns and only two interceptions—both of those came in the first game of the season.

That puts him beyond what he was after eight games last season (41 of 93 for 778 yards and 13 touchdowns).

"Aaron did what he was supposed to do," said Inkster Coach Greg Carter of his star's performance against Robichaud. "He was right on and did a good job. I can see the accuracy improving. We just need him to keep getting better because the games are going to keep getting tougher and tougher as we go along."

Shavers' impressive stats are in part due to the solid receivers around him. Against Robichaud, senior wideouts Renty Rollins and Derrick Coker were relentless. Coker snagged four passes for 83 yards for a touchdown and two two-point conversions. Rollins nabbed three balls and caught two touchdown passes. He had a diving third catch that looked like another touchdown, but was ruled incomplete.

"Rollins is a player; he makes plays," Carter said. "He, along with Coker, gives us a tough combination and we have a lot of young guys that are developing outside of them. We try to utilize them when we can. I don't think that we gave them enough opportunities in the first quarter, but we were heading into the wind and wanted to be safe with the ball and not give up any turnovers."

Inkster set the pace of the game early, scoring on the game's first drive—a 12-play, five-minute, 80-yard jaunt that ended with a

Canton wins WLAA

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

Great games go to great lengths sometimes.

That was the case when Canton visited Livonia Stevenson for the Western Lakes Activities Association soccer championship game last Wednesday.

It took 110 minutes—80 minutes of regulation and 30 minutes of overtime play—before the 1-1 tie went into the standard penalty-kick shootout tiebreaker mode.

There, the pressure fell on the familiar shoulders of Canton senior forward Mark Edwards. On Wednesday, he fired a shot into Stevenson's goal to give the Chiefs a 2-1 victory and second straight conference crown. The goal was a carbon copy of the penalty kick Edwards scored to boost Canton past Northville last season for the Western Lakes title.

It looked to be a done deal when Eric Caron, from Sherif Hassanien, put Canton on the board first at about the 17:50 mark of the first half. The 1-0 lead stood until Stevenson's junior Adrian Fylenenko put one past Canton goalie Kevin Krause with just 4:55 left to play in regulation.

Krause was stellar up to that point. He made up for it later in the game, too. He stopped two Stevenson penalty shots and scored Canton's first one of the tiebreaker.

Canton Coach George Tomasso was unavailable for comment.

The Chiefs improved to 12-3-4 with the win. The loss was the first for Stevenson, now 16-1, and set the stage for another tiebreaker. The Spartans beat Canton 2-0 the previous week, setting up a rematch for the first round of district play.

Results were unavailable at press time.

four-yard score by Denzel Richmond.

Shavers made it a 14-0 game when he hit Rollins for a 50-yard pass and score play. Then he found Rollins in the corner of the end zone for the two-point conversion at 8:41 of the second. On the first play of the Vikes' next drive—41 seconds later—Coker grabbed a 30-yard pass for a score and a 20-0 advantage.

Robichaud answered with a 75-yard kickoff return by Deon

Daniels to cut into the lead, 20-6.

Richmond scored again from four yards out for Inkster and Shavers found Coker on a short slant for the two-point conversion to put Inkster up, 28-6, with 5:16 left to play in the first half.

Robichaud took advantage of a short-field situation on its next drive. Gerald McCanes stretched in to the end zone from four yards out to make it a 28-12 game

Faux 'Paws' Turnovers spoil Tigers' homecoming

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

The Belleville Tigers and the Allen Park Jaguars went paw to paw for the first half of Belleville's homecoming gridiron battle on Friday night.

But the Tigers fell victim to fourth-quarter turnovers that resulted in a 26-14 loss.

Early in the fourth, Allen Park's Jesse Lyscas blocked a Belleville punt and returned it for a touchdown. That gave Allen Park a 20-7 lead. On Belleville's next series, Lyscas recovered a fumble on the Tigers' 20. Six plays later, Allen Park was in for another score, extending the lead to 26-7.

Belleville got things going again and, with about five minutes left in the game, put together a drive that spanned 65 yards on three plays. The result was a 44-yard jaunt by Dominique Lynch to put the Tigers within reach, 26-14.

The on-side kick attempt failed and the Jaguars ran out the clock.

Allen Park took a 6-0 lead with a one-yard plunge by Bobby Lowry on Allen Park's first drive at 7:21 of the first. Lowry added another six points when he caught a 27-yard pass from Shayne Jaroslawski with 2:50 to go in the first half.

Belleville didn't get its first touchdown until the 3:20 mark of the third period, when Steve Else broke free for a 32-yard score. The extra point made it a five-point game, 12-7.

Else was Belleville's top rusher with 78 yards on 10 carries. Antonio LaBoda gained 76 yards on 15 attempts. Lynch carried the ball three times for 47 yards. Quarterback Rod Barksdale was 6-for-11 for 80 yards.

On defense Roger Roper, Keshawn Payne and Else were solid leading the team in tackles.

As far as the scoreboard is considered, the loss was another step down a frustrating road for Belleville Coach Bob LaPointe and his team. The Tigers remain winless, 0-8.

"It's been tough," he said. "The last couple of years we were 2-7 and it's been frustrating. I feel we could have won at least five games this year, but we keep making mistakes like the blocked punt, which was uncalled for. We can't do things like that and expect to win."

They haven't won a game, but LaPointe said it was a good season as far as team growth was concerned.

"(We) have really enjoyed coaching these kids this year," he said. "They are a great group of players. They have been great through all of this. They have great attitudes; there we never any problems; and they always did everything that we asked them to do. In that regard we couldn't have asked for anything more. I just wish the kids could have been rewarded

with 2:19 left to play.

With 37 seconds left Shavers connected with Rollins again for a touchdown and Coker for the two-point conversion. The Vikes carried a 34-12 lead into the half-time break.

Javier Reed opened the second half with an interception on Robichaud's first play.

That set up Shavers' 36-yard touchdown keeper at 10:43 of the third. Shavers scored again on an 18-yard run with 3:17 left in the third for a 47-12 lead.

Armond Staten capped off the game with a 36-yard interception returned for a touchdown as time expired in the third frame.

Inkster's defense held the Bulldogs to 75 total yards—43 rushing and 32 passing.

"Robichaud came out in the second half with the intentions of being physical and I think we stood up to it," Carter said. "We did some good things against a skilled team—they have some good players. Other than the special teams aspect we kept them in front of us and that's what we wanted to do."

Although the Vikings had already solidified a playoff spot, this game was just as important to the team, according to Carter.

"We're at the point right now where we can't have a slipup," he said. "After the ninth week we're going to be just like everybody else; 0-0. No matter if you won all of the games that you played before—one loss and you're out. We understand that and we know that we have to bring out best game every week."

Inkster plays Divine Child in the season finale.

Ignition re-signs vet defends

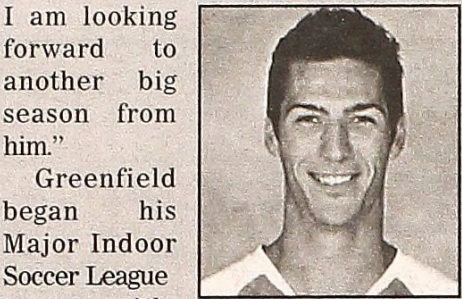

Jeff Novak
Staff Writer

Among the many new faces of the Detroit Ignition there will be at least one familiar player, too.

Veteran defender Jonathan Greenfield inked a deal last week that will keep him in the Ignition uniform for the 2007-08 season.

During the Ignition's inaugural 2006-07 season, Greenfield led the club in blocks with 39 during 30 regular-season contests. He was named to the 2007 All-MISL Second Team, and received Defensive Player of the Week and Month honors from the MISL in the winter of 2007.

"Jonathan had a breakout year last season," said Ignition Coach Mark Pulisic. "His pace and ability on the ball from a defensive position was extremely dangerous for any opposition."

Jonathan Greenfield began his Major Indoor Soccer League career with the Milwaukee Wave in 2004-05. He was acquired by Detroit in the 2006 MISL Expansion Draft.

The financial terms of the agreement were not disclosed per club policy.

The Detroit Ignition, in its second year as a member club of the Major Indoor Soccer League, advanced to the MISL Championship Finals during the 2006-07 season. The team starts its second season in November 2007.

The first bout is scheduled for 7:35 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 3 at home at the Compuware Arena in Plymouth Township. The Ignition will face off against the Philadelphia KiXX that beat them in the championship game last year.

Information regarding Ignition season, group, and individual tickets can be obtained by calling the club at 1-888-436-GOAL (4625), by visiting the team's official website, www.detroitignition.com, by calling TicketMaster at 248-645-6666 or by using www.ticketmaster.com.

CITY OF ROMULUS BOARD OF ZONING APPEALS NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING 36175 HERMAN

Pursuant to Michigan Public Act 110 of 2006, as amended (The City and Village Zoning Act), notice is hereby given that the City of Romulus will hold a public hearing at 7:00 p.m. on Wednesday, November 7, 2007 for the purpose of considering a variance request. The public hearing will be held at the Romulus City Hall Council Chambers, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus MI 48174-1485.

The Zoning Board of Appeals has set the public hearing to consider a variance from Section 4.25 Signs. E.1. to allow a proposed billboard to be placed less than 500 feet from a residentially zoned district on all sides (north, south, east and west) of the subject site. The Sign Ordinance does not permit billboards to be placed closer than 500 feet from any residentially zoned district; therefore, setback variances are required for the proposed billboard. The subject property is located at 36175 Herman. DP# 82-80-068-99-0033-700. Copies of the application are available for review at City Hall during regular business hours.

All interested parties are encouraged to attend and will be given an opportunity to comment on said request. Written comments may be submitted until 12:00 noon, Wednesday, November 7, 2007 and should be addressed to Cynthia I. Lyon, AICP, City Planner, Economic Development Department, 11111 Wayne Road, Romulus, MI 48174-1485.
